There is not any present moment that is unconnected with some future one. The life of every man is a continued chain of incidents, each link of which hangs upon the former.

Transition planning IS a life long process. It begins at an early age, almost unnoticed, as we ask our child that perennial question, "What do you want to be when you grow up?" We know the answer will likely change several times as our child ages, but regardless of the answer, or how often the answer may change, planning is necessary to attain goals. Whether your child is a youngster entering into a new world of education, a middle school student learning to think about the future, or a young adult entering the post-secondary world, our annual conference will provide you with information you can use.

Don't miss it!

Join us at The Citadel on Sept. 17th and take part in this day of learning & networking.
